

main claim to greatness that out of the chaotic

A word must be said as to the extent of Norman conquest on the mainland, so far as Guiscord and

Richard with their lieutenants had carried it.

Richard's son Jordan ruled a territory reaching from Bente Yaka Amitepa and the from Rente, Valva, Amitecchio, and the Marsiso on the north to Nocera on the Sarno and the fortifications of the castle and the environs of Naples on the south: he possessed Home vague claims over that city itself: at (Vprano his boundary touched that of the Patrimony, the WIA» his from Ciaffa or even Terraeina to Naples;

Pondi, Trajwtto, and Gadla recognised him aa their lord. While Capua under Norman dukes had bitten deeply into Ileneventan's territory, Guiscard had from the ttouth and cast completed the work of demolition, and the city of Renovento

alone remained of the great Lombard duchy, While Robert's dominion touched the Capuan on the Sarno and about Benevento, northward it stretched over the lower Abruzzi.
Before (*uiseard died his nephew Robert of Loritello had carried his banner to the IVseara; he.
and other free-lance made» their way to Chieti and the